INTRODUCTION

April 12, 2005

Dear Prospective Applicant,

Serve DC looks forward to receiving your organization's application for a Learn and Serve Community-Based project within the District of Columbia. Please use the attached guidelines if you are applying for project funds.

Serve DC anticipates being able to award one-year grants of up to $60,000. Awards will be made in May. Funds must be used to develop and build support for high quality service-learning projects that involve youth in problem solving and planning for their communities. Serve DC envisions a Community-Based service-learning program that is not only attractive to after-school, out-of-school and summer providers, but to the youth themselves. We desire a program that attracts youth to service and develops a lifelong ethic of service.

Eligible applicants are local nonprofits, community and faith-based organizations and local units of government that may provide after-school programming in collaboration with local schools. Applicants applying to Serve DC for funding must operate the project within the District of Columbia. An electronic copy of the RFA is available at www.serve.dc.gov.

The deadline for applications is 5:00 p.m. May 4, 2005. Late applications will not be accepted. An application is considered late at 5:01 p.m. A checklist is provided to assist in meeting the submission requirements. Incomplete submissions will be ineligible for review. Applicants must submit one original and (7) copies. Please bind copies with binder clips only and do not staple.

Potential applicants are required to attend one of the following technical assistance sessions at One Judiciary Square, 441 4th St. NW, Room 1114: April 12, 2005 and April 20, 2005 from 5:00 PM to 7:00 PM. (Take the Metro red line to Judiciary Square, exit 4th Street, Courthouse side.) Please call Cliffie Bailey at 202-727-7925 to RSVP for a training session.

Very truly yours,

DEFINITION AND GOALS

Engaging Youth in “Exploring the Past, Present and Future of Their Neighborhoods”

K-12 Community-Based Projects

What is service-learning?

Service-learning combines service to the community with student learning in a way that improves both the student and the community. According to the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993, service-learning:

- a. Is a method whereby youth learn and develop through active participation in thoughtfully organized service that is conducted in and meets the needs of communities;
- b. Is coordinated with a community service program and the community;
- c. Helps foster civic responsibility;
- d. Is integrated into and enhances the academic curriculum and the education components of the community service program in which the participants are enrolled; and
- e. Provides structured time for participants to reflect on the service experience.

The overall goals of this grant funding are:

- a. To develop and build support for high-quality service-learning projects in DC that will ultimately assist local nonprofits, community and faith-based organizations and local units of government that may provide after-school programming in collaboration with local schools to effectively administer service-learning projects as part of their youth programming;
- b. To increase and enhance opportunities for youth to serve by identifying youth volunteerism opportunities at community and faith-based organizations; and
- c. To promote recognition initiatives for youth engaged in service (President’s Volunteer Service Award, Mayor’s Community Service Award, etc.) to recognize and to award outstanding performance of participants.

Amounts of Grants

The grant amount will vary by circumstance, need, and program model. Serve DC will award grants up to $60,000 to non-profits, community and faith-based organizations and to local units of government.

OVERVIEW

THE DC COMMISSION ON NATIONAL AND COMMUNITY SERVICE

Serve DC was established by an Executive Order of Mayor Anthony A. Williams on July 21, 2000 and is housed in the Executive Office of the Mayor. The mission of Serve DC is to strengthen and promote the District of Columbia's spirit of service through partnerships, national service and volunteerism. Serve DC with the support of the District's State Education Office and DC Public Schools (DCPS) will provide grant funding to Community-Based programs in the District of Columbia.

As described in Serve DC's Unified District Plan for Service, its shared vision statement is 'to be a community that embraces an ethic of service and empowers residents to work together with unity of purpose.' Serve DC works closely with other national service providers in the District including AmeriCorps*National Directs, AmeriCorps*VISTA, AmeriCorps*NCCC, and Senior Corps to share resources, effective practices, and support to strengthen the local national service network.

Serve DC also works with a cadre of other organizations throughout the District to promote service and volunteerism. Mayor Anthony A. Williams designated Serve DC as the District coordinator for Citizen Corps. Citizen Corps creates opportunities for individuals to help their communities prepare for and respond to emergencies. Serve DC also coordinates the Mayor's Community Service Award, which recognizes one youth and one adult volunteer each month for outstanding community service in the District.

Serve DC will administer Learn and Serve Community-Based funding through federal funds from the Corporation for National and Community Service. Therefore, District and federal rules and regulations apply. In addition to providing grant funding, Serve DC provides oversight and support to applicants selected as programs. Oversight includes site visits, fiscal monitoring and reporting requirements, while support includes project coordinator trainings, meetings, and one-on-one technical assistance.

THE STATE EDUCATION OFFICE

Since January 2003, the State Education Office has been working in partnership with the Mayor, District government agencies and several corporate partners to focus sustained attention on areas that will significantly improve literacy services for families, such as coordination, capacity-building and communication. Serve DC is seeking applicants that will be able to strongly support the goal of education in the City-wide Strategic Plan.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT DESIGNING A LEARN AND SERVE PROJECT

NEEDS AND SERVICES

Proposed projects will allow youth an opportunity to explore the past, present and future of their neighborhoods while serving their communities. Applicants will be encouraged to develop service-learning programs that give youth an opportunity to canvass and map their own communities; research the histories of their neighborhoods; identify community assets and needs in order to develop service-learning projects; and find the people, organizations and systems that make their communities stronger such as city council members and various government offices.

The needs statement in an applicant's proposal should reflect the compelling needs of its project and be supported by evidence, such as census data, community needs assessments, or other reliable measures. Applicants should describe how needs were identified.

Successful applicants must identify a coordinator for the service-learning project. Proposals should describe a comprehensive plan to recruit, select, develop, train, supervise and recognize youth and additional community volunteers.

The needs statement may identify concerns within the community, such as literacy, civic knowledge and participation, drop-out rates or risky behavior, or it may cite needs in other issue areas such as housing, economic development, nutrition, or public safety. The activities of the project must have a positive impact on the needs identified while enhancing the breadth and depth of service-learning in programs.

Successful applicants will describe experience in service-learning and clearly explain how the community service proposed will be tied to learning outcomes and will provide evidence of previous accomplishment in developing service, service-learning, or community partnerships to meet local needs.

Successful applicants will detail how youth will prepare, act and reflect on the community service they undertake. They will clearly outline how the program will be structured during the day and over the course of the program so time is allotted for learning and reflection.

In order to ensure that youth receive the greatest possible benefit from service-learning activities, community service activities and service-learning/reflection must be planned carefully. Youth need opportunities to develop their leadership and civic skills. They also need structured time to reflect on their service in order to analyze it in its academic, historical and community context and internalize the lessons learned.

STRENGTHENING COMMUNITIES

Community involvement in all phases of a project is critical to its success. Successful applicants will describe strong community partnerships, including well defined roles for partners. In addition to forming community partnerships to support service-learning activities, Learn and Serve Community-Based projects are required to support service-learning projects involving the recruitment and management of adult volunteers. The recruitment, management and involvement of adult volunteers provide valuable models of service to youth. When the volunteers are family members it fosters an ethic of service in school, in the community, and at home.

As part of a national strategy for making federal resources available to faith-based organizations, applicants should describe how partnerships will be encouraged between the project and faith-based organizations, where appropriate. As with all partnerships, these partnerships should be multifaceted and built on mutual planning and decision-making.

A vibrant service-learning project must consist of a viable fiscal agent, and one or more community partners that include: a public or private nonprofit organization or a private for-profit business. In addition, such partnership recognizes service-learning coordinators, youth, community partners, and other volunteers. In short, a well-designed service-learning program brings each partner to the table to help guide the program.

Successful applicants need to demonstrate a commitment to sustainability and cost effectiveness. High quality service-learning projects are characterized by a reciprocal partnership between the non-profit organizations, community and faith-based organizations and the community.

Building reciprocal partnerships takes effort and time. Sustainable and reciprocal partnerships should be the goal of each proposed project. Partnerships that share responsibility for the program and community partners can benefit the organization's efforts to sustain the program.

Successful applicants will indicate how community partnerships and volunteer recruitment and management strategies build the capacity of all parties to strengthen both the organization and the community.

DEVELOPMENT OF PARTICIPANTS

A. Youth (Program Participants)

Community involvement in schools builds the capacity of the school to meet the needs of the students. Likewise youth service builds the capacity of community organizations to meet their missions. DCPS mandates that every student graduating from high school must complete 100 hours of community service that in order to graduate. The Learn and Serve Community-Based grant can provide youth with opportunities to meet this requirement in meaningful ways. Projects will be responsible for tracking service hours of youth participants enrolled in the program.

Successful applicants will be required to nominate outstanding participants for the Serve DC-sponsored Mayor's Community Service Award, which is given each month to one youth and one adult.

Another opportunity for youth to apply their learning, expand their leadership skills, and reflect on their experience will be in the celebration activities for the Learn and Serve programs. Applicants are required to participate, create or showcase their service-learning projects to the community during National Youth Service Day in April.

National Youth Service Day. The largest service event in the world is April 15-17, 2005. Last year, over 8,000 youth and their families in Washington, DC participated in 60 community service projects. This is an opportunity to highlight youth and their commitment to the community. Applicants can contact Jelani Freeman, Serve DC Y.E.S. Ambassador at 202.727.7925 to learn more about funding resources, service project ideas, etc.

How the projects are showcased will be determined by the youth. They may decide to create a report, exhibit, or multimedia presentation with the assistance of T/TA providers. This will provide an opportunity for them to further develop their verbal and written communication skills and work cooperatively with each other. They must be encouraged to invite local politicians, community organizers, and mentors, further connecting them to positive role models of citizenship and service. Your proposal should include a well-designed plan to engage participants in service activities during National Youth Service Day.

B. Service-Learning Coordinators

Research suggests that the positive effects of service-learning for participants can only be sustained if youth are given multiple opportunities over time to link their learning to service.¹ Selected applicants will receive required training in effective service-learning principles provided by Serve DC.

Applicants should indicate how participants will be assisted in developing service-learning opportunities that maximize outcomes. Research suggests that service activities should be of sustained or significant duration (at least 20 hours a semester), engage youth in effective reflection, and be available many times throughout a youth's education. Effective projects prepare youth in advance for their service experience. Project participants should be given time to reflect on their community service in the context of the service-learning throughout the project and should be encouraged to analyze and think critically about their service activities on an ongoing basis.

Successful applicants will be designed to implement age-appropriate learning activities that foster civic knowledge, attitudes, and behavior. The relationship between community service and democratic practices, ideas and history should be made explicit in order for youth to see community service as a civic responsibility.

High-quality service-learning projects should educate youth in the historical context of the laws and social policies that affect the community service they conduct. This reflection is essential to the development of civic participation in young people over time. All projects should link service to civic participation and the roots, principles, and history of American democracy. By purposefully linking participants' actions of today to our nation's past, the connection can be made to the role and responsibility of each citizen.

Additional resources include:

A National Initiative on American History, Civics, and Service, a project of National History Day and the National Archives and Records Administration (www.ourdocuments.gov); and, a new competitive grants program, We the People, offered by the National Endowment for the Humanities (www.wethepeople.gov).

The project's program design should provide youth the opportunity to serve with others from diverse backgrounds. Diversity has wide meaning here and may include differences in age, ethnicity, English proficiency, religion, economic status, race, and disabilities. All project participants need to be appropriately prepared to serve with others who are different from themselves in order to provide positive experiences for all participants. A key factor in this preparation is to help each group to understand what it needs from the others in order to accomplish the service project.

A Report from Carnegie Corporation of New York and CIRCLE: The Center for Information and Research on Civic Learning and Engagement, The Civic Mission of Schools, 2003: 20.¹

Adequate site supervision is a fundamental part of any service experience and requires careful preparation of those who coordinate service activities, whether they are service-learning coordinators, adult volunteers, or community agency representatives.

ORGANIZATIONAL CAPACITY

Successful applicants are responsible for the success of the project and the overall achievement of the program objectives. Keys to the program's success lie in the implementation of activities, attendance and participation in training and technical assistance, and evaluation of service-learning activities.

Each project has the responsibility of regularly monitoring the progress that is being made toward meeting the performance measures, to request on-site technical assistance, and ensure the project has sound financial procedures for spending and documenting grant and matching funds.

Applicants will be required to attend a three-day orientation and curriculum training, quarterly sub-grantee meetings, other trainings as appropriate and encouraged to attend the National Service-Learning Conference. Additionally, projects are required to submit quarterly reports to document their progress toward their performance measures.

Learn and Serve Community-Based projects will be evaluated on timely reporting to Serve DC, attendance at all required training and meetings and progress toward meeting objectives. Failure to meet the stated requirements may lead to suspension or termination of program funds.

Applicants should consider working with colleges and universities to help design data collection and evaluation systems.

Each grantee must be capable of providing sound fiscal management, adequate staff resources, and have the capacity to manage federal grants. The program must employ qualified personnel who have experience in managing service-learning or other federal projects, both fiscally and programmatically.

COST EFFECTIVENESS

Applicants' detailed budgets must provide a full explanation of associated costs including purpose, justification, and the basis of calculations. Where appropriate, calculations should be presented in an equation format, identifying the number of persons involved, the per person/unit cost, and/or itemized line items.

Summary of statutory budget requirements: The source(s) of match may be federal (non Corporation), state, or local (public or private.)

You must allocate at least 10% and not more than 15% of the Serve DC share to planning and capacity building costs.

Consistency of treatment: To be allowable under this award, costs must be consistent with policies and procedures that apply uniformly to both federally financed and other activities of the applicant. Furthermore, the costs must be accorded consistent treatment in both federally financed and other activities as well as between activities supported by different sources of federal funds.

Match: Applicants should describe the major sources of match contribution by clearly indicating the source(s), the type of contribution (cash or in-kind), the approximate amount (or estimate), and the intended purpose of the match. Applicants must match with cash or in-kind contributions at 30% of the project's total costs of the grant.

REVIEW AND SELECTION CRITERIA

Serve DC receives far more proposals than it can award. Applicants are selected using an extensive, multi-stage process. The process includes reviews by the staff, peer review panels, and approval by the Board of Commissioners. Before a program is recommended for approval, it may be necessary to conduct clarifying interviews in person or through conference calls. This process is highly competitive; therefore, Serve DC is seeking high quality programs that fully address these guidelines.

Serve DC will enter into negotiations with potentially successful applicants in a manner that may require significant modifications to original proposals. Awards are contingent on successful completion of negotiations. The number of applications approved each year of the three-year funding cycle is subject to the availability of funds.

The bullets under each sub-heading describe what Serve DC considers important and what applicants should include in the application narrative. Program Design includes three sub-categories and represents 60 percent of the basis used to evaluate and select each program. The sub-categories of Needs and Service Activities, Strengthening Communities and Participant Development, are related and are therefore grouped in a single Program Design criteria. Serve DC and Corporation will give equal importance to these subcategories when reviewing applications.

PROGRAM DESIGN (60%)

IMPORTANT: All projects are required to submit at least one performance measures related to each of the three aspects of program design outlined below:

Needs and Activities (20%)

- Sound track record of accomplishment as an organization;
- Well-defined roles for staff; and
- Well-designed plan or systems for self-assessment, evaluation, and continuous improvement.

ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS

The following is a list of considerations Serve DC will give to applications in making final selections: programs that are high-quality and innovative; programs that have the potential to be replicated by programs in other areas; programs that can sustain themselves or the service activities with other support when the grant period ends; and programs that are geographically diverse.

In addition, Serve DC seeks a participant pool that includes young people ages 5-17, approximately equal numbers of boys and girls, individuals with disabilities and individuals of all races, ethnicities, faiths, and economic backgrounds.

GRANT PERIOD

Serve DC generally provides funding for a three-year project period. Applications must include proposed activities and a detailed proposed budget for the first year of operation and program objectives for a one-year period.

Successful applicants enter into an award agreement for one year; Serve DC will provide funding only for the first year of the program. Serve DC has no obligation to provide additional funding in subsequent years.

FEDERAL FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT AND GRANT ADMINISTRATION REQUIREMENTS

As with all federal grant programs, it is the responsibility of all grantees to ensure appropriate stewardship of federal funds entrusted to them. Under Serve DC regulations, each grantee must maintain financial management systems that provide accurate, current, and complete disclosure of the financial results of its program. To meet this requirement, applicants must have adequate accounting practices and procedures, internal controls, audit trails, and cost allocation procedures. OMB Circular A-133, Audits of States, Local Governments, and Nonprofit Organizations, requires all organizations to have financial audits if they annually expend $500,000 or more under federal awards. This requirement applies to the organization's total expenditures each fiscal year under all of its federal awards.

As with all Federal grant programs, applicants must ensure that programs or activities will be conducted, and facilities operated, in compliance with the applicable civil rights statutes and their implementing regulations. For civil rights purposes, all programs and projects funded under the National and Community Service Act, as amended, are programs or activities receiving federal financial assistance. See the Learn and Service General Grant Provisions for specific requirements.

http://www.learnandserve.org/resources/general_prov_lsa01.pdf. The Corporation's requirements related to program participation, including discrimination requirements, are set forth in applicable grant provisions.

DEVELOPING YOUR PERFORMANCE MEASURES

Excerpted from Performance Measurement Toolkit Developed by ProjectSTAR

Performance Measurement Basics

Performance Measurement

Performance measurement is the process of regularly measuring the outputs and outcomes produced by your program. Performance measurement allows you to track both the amount of work done by your program and the impact of this work on your program beneficiaries.

Performance measurement is a useful tool for managing your program. It allows you to track the progress of your program towards larger goals, and to identify program strengths and possible areas for improvement. Program staff, community partners, and participants should be actively involved in performance measurement activities to track outputs and outcomes. Ultimately, performance measurement information will ensure program accountability, and will help improve services and client outcomes.

Results Outputs

Outputs refer to the amount of work or products completed and services delivered by your program. Examples include service hours completed by participants and volunteers, neighborhood cleanup projects completed, and teacher training sessions conducted. Outputs answer the question, "How much work did we do?" but do not answer the question, "What changed as a result of our work?"

Intermediate Outcomes

Intermediate outcomes are changes or benefits experienced by your service recipients or participants. However, intermediate outcomes do not represent the final result you hope to achieve for your beneficiaries. For example, if your final result is to improve student academic performance, then intermediate outcomes might include improved attitudes towards school and reduced truancy. These are likely preconditions for improved academic performance. Positive results for intermediate outcomes are usually a sign that your program is on track to achieve the related end outcomes.

End Outcomes

End outcomes are the positive changes that your program ultimately hopes to achieve for beneficiaries. End outcomes address needed changes in community conditions, or behavior and attitudes of beneficiaries, including participants.

Reasons to Conduct Performance Measurement

Performance measurement responds to the need for program managers and funding agencies to systematically measure the effectiveness of program activities. Maximizing program effectiveness is critical in light of the limited resources available to meet the needs of people and communities. Performance measurement provides decision makers with reliable information on the effectiveness of program activities in achieving intended outcomes.

To summarize, performance measurement allows you to:

- Clarify the purpose of your program and the way specific services contribute to achieving desired results.
- Document the actual results of program activities.
- Improve program performance by identifying program successes and areas for improvement.

Using a Program Logic Model to Identify Key Activities and Outcomes

The program logic model provides a concise visual representation of activities that are the core of your program. Logic modeling can be used during the planning or development of your program to identify the results your program intends to achieve. The logic model below consists of five components.

Logic Model Components

- Inputs: Resources used to produce outputs and outcomes.
- Activities: What a program does with the inputs.
- Outputs: The products and services delivered (e.g., students tutored, trees planted).
- Intermediate Outcomes: Changes that have occurred in the lives of the beneficiaries and/or members, but have fallen short of a significant benefit for them. These may include quality indicators such as timeliness and client satisfaction.
- End Outcomes: Changes that have occurred in the lives of beneficiaries and/or participants that constitute significant benefits to them.

Logic Model Benefits

Using the logic model will help your program:

- Communicate its potential value.
- Clarify the results you are trying to achieve.
- Identify the key program elements that must be tracked to assess your program's effectiveness.
- Make clear program premises and make visible stakeholder assumptions.
- Improve program planning and performance by identifying the ways to measure program success and areas for improvement.

Considerations in Developing a Logic Model

- Involve appropriate stakeholders in the process. Developing a logic model as a group builds consensus by focusing on the values and beliefs influencing what your organization wants to accomplish and why.
- Start with activities. Work back and forth between the various components as you develop your logic model. However, keep in mind that there is no "one right way" to create a logic model. Some programs may want to start with their desired outcomes and develop the best activities to meet those outcomes, especially those of you with experience using logic models. It is likely that you will have more than one output, intermediate outcome and/or end outcome.
- Keep it brief (one page). Use the logic model to describe the core of your program to your reader. Include only those inputs and activities that are directly applicable to the intended changes. Use separate logic models for each major program activity.

- Look at what will actually occur. Look realistically at program results as well as the way the program is currently implemented not how it functioned in the past. Choose those outputs, intermediate outcomes, and end outcomes that best describe the purpose of your program.
- Keep it simple. Come up with a model that reflects how and why your program will work.
- Be ready to modify. Since this is a snapshot of program activity at one point in time, keep in mind that you will need to refine your logic model over time.

The Logic Model and Performance Measurement Worksheets

Developing a logic model can assist you in building your performance measurement worksheets. As you move through the logic model process, you begin to identify the key outputs, intermediate outcomes, and end outcomes for core activities. For each selected output and outcome, identify specific instruments you will need to track your progress.

Keep in mind the Corporation requirements for type and number of outputs, intermediate outcomes, and end outcomes that are to be reported. When selecting the outputs and outcomes you plan to measure, select those you believe to be the results that are the most important to report to the Corporation.

An example of a logic model is demonstrated on the next page. It includes sample indicators below each result. An indicator is the specific, measurable item of information that specifies progress toward achieving the result. The following page demonstrates how the logic model helps to build the performance measurement worksheet. Work back and forth between the elements of the logic model and performance measurement worksheet to ensure that:

- Performance measurement components are connected (i.e., there is a clear link from inputs to program service to intended outputs/outcomes).
- Performance measurement worksheets are specific and reflect activities that are feasible given the program resources (inputs), activities, and time frame.
- Outputs and outcomes relate to your activity.

Other Approaches

In addition to using the logic model, there are other approaches that may help you identify meaningful results. For example, other approaches include holding focus groups with clients to identify what they want and expect from the services. You can also find out what similar programs elsewhere have identified as outputs and outcomes and tailor those to your own program context and needs. In this way, you can benefit from the effective practices of other programs and minimize “reinventing the wheel.”

Need more help?

We recommend that applicants use any of the following resources in developing these performance measures:

- The complete Performance Measure Toolkit that we have excerpted here is available on the Project Star website under the “AmeriCorps State and National” link. While the toolkit is geared toward AmeriCorps, you will find it full of valuable information that can help you as you craft your performance measures. Project Star will be revising this for Learn and Serve, and it will be posted as soon as it is ready. Current link:

By signing and submitting this application, as the duly authorized representative of the applicant, you certify that the applicant will comply with the Assurances and Certifications described below.

a) Inability to certify

Your inability to provide the assurances and certifications listed below will not necessarily result in denial of a grant. You must submit an explanation of why you cannot do so. We will consider your explanation in determining whether to enter into this transaction. However, your failure to furnish an explanation will disqualify your application.

b) Erroneous certification or assurance

The assurances and certifications are material representations of fact upon which we rely in determining whether to enter into this transaction. If we later determine that you knowingly submitted an erroneous certification or assurance, in addition to other remedies available to the federal government, we may terminate this transaction for cause or default.

c) Notice of error in certification or assurance

You must provide immediate written notice to us if at any time you learn that a certification or assurance was erroneous when submitted or has become erroneous because of changed circumstances.

The terms “covered transaction”, “debarred”, “suspended”, “ineligible”, “lower tier covered transaction”, “participant”, “person”, “primary covered transaction”, “principal”, “proposal”, and “voluntarily excluded” as used in this clause, have the meanings set out in the Definitions and Coverage sections of the rules implementing Executive Order 12549. An applicant shall be considered a “prospective primary participant in a covered transaction” as defined in the rules implementing Executive Order 12549. f) Certification inclusion in sub-grant agreements

You agree by submitting this proposal that you will include the clause titled “Certification Regarding Debarment, Suspension, Ineligibility and Voluntary Exclusion-Lower Tier Covered Transactions,” provided by us, without modification, in all lower tier covered transactions and in all solicitations for lower tier covered transactions.

g) Certification of sub-grant principals

You may rely upon a certification of a prospective participant in a lower-tier covered transaction that is not debarred, suspended, ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from the covered transaction, unless you know that the certification is erroneous. You may decide the method and frequency by which you determine the eligibility of your principals. You may, but are not required to, check the List of Parties Excluded from Federal Procurement and Non-procurement Programs.

h) Non-certification in sub-grant agreements

If you knowingly enter into a lower tier covered transaction with a person who is suspended, debarred, ineligible, or voluntarily excluded from participation in this transaction, in addition to other remedies available to the federal government, we may terminate this transaction for cause or default.

i) Prudent person standard

Nothing contained in the foregoing may be construed to require establishment of a system of records in order to render in good faith the assurances and certifications required. Your knowledge and information is not required to exceed that which is normally possessed by a prudent person in the ordinary course of business dealings.
